The diagram is a large circle divided into four equal quadrants, each representing a season. The top-left quadrant is labeled 'Winter' and features a blue background with white snowflakes, stars, and silhouettes of evergreen trees. The top-right quadrant is labeled 'Spring' and features a light blue background with butterflies, flowers, and a bird. The bottom-left quadrant is labeled 'Autumn' and features a brown background with falling yellow and orange leaves. The bottom-right quadrant is labeled 'Summer' and features a yellow background with various fruits like cherries, strawberries, and lemons. Surrounding the circle are empty boxes for matching months: a blue box at the top, a green box at the top-right, an orange box at the bottom-left, and a yellow box at the bottom-right. On the left side, there are three more boxes: one blue box containing the word 'January', one empty blue box, and one empty brown box. On the right side, there are three more boxes: one empty green box, one empty green box, and one empty yellow box. A blue arrow points to the 'Winter' quadrant with the text 'Start here'.
